

The aims and objectives of the Highway Engineering Laboratory in brief are summarized to the following:

- Education to graduate and post-graduate students in the Civil Engineering Department.
- Basic and advance research in the subjects of Highway, Airport and Railway engineering.
- Applied research on new technologies and materials in the science of engineering related to Highways, Airports and Railways.
- Application of the scientific knowledge in solving practical problems with the aim to improve the quality of works in the Greek and International territories.
- Co-operation with other National and International academic and research establishments.
- Organize Conferences and Seminars and develop co-operation with the Public and Private organizations and consultancies for the diffusion of know-how